Dear San Diego County Residents and Live Well San Diego Community Partners:

In completing the seventh year of our collective efforts, it is time again to focus on how we are advancing the Live Well San Diego vision together, how we are ‘walking the talk,’ and how we can reach even more of our residents to have a lasting positive impact in their lives.

Between July 2016 through June 2017, we collaborated on four significant events related to the health and wellness of our community: the Live Well San Diego 5K in July; the Live Well Advance in November; the Love Your Heart free blood pressure screening day in February; and the Vital Aging 2017 event in June. These events reached a combined total of more than 55,000 county residents and many more beyond our borders. We are proud to say that our Live Well San Diego Recognized Partners, County departments and other stakeholders were leaders in and key contributors to the success of these events. Whether one-on-one at a booth or speaking to the crowd from a podium, we educated participants in the wealth of services available to them, bringing the Live Well San Diego vision to life. We supported aligned activities, utilized shared measurement, advanced policy and strengthened public will to live well.

A key part of the Live Well San Diego vision are its strategic approaches – building a better service delivery system, supporting positive choices, pursuing policy and environmental changes, and improving the culture within. Partners in every sector have adopted these strategic approaches in their own ways to drive positive change. Businesses are championing employee wellness programs, and community-based organizations hold their own health events. Cities are creating healthy, safe spaces for community members to gather, and educators are cultivating readiness for the workforce of the future. Through the active engagement of elected officials, health professionals, businesses, schools and many other community partners, San Diego County is demonstrating that influencing health, safety and social wellbeing is beneficial for everyone.

In this annual report, you will read about the activities and accomplishments of nearly 100 of the 304 Recognized Partners. All are dedicated to serving our many and varied communities, with the goal of advancing those strategic approaches on the ground in our communities, and in a way that is visible and driving measurable results.

Please join us on our continuing journey as we work together for positive change. As a team, we can improve the quality and efficiency of our service delivery; inspire residents to take action for their well-being through positive choices; create policy changes that improve lives; and improve our own worksite cultures and wellness.

We will continue to walk the talk so we can all live well!
Sustainable change requires a multi-sector approach to community health, safety and wellness. Since 2010, Live Well San Diego has united individuals and organizations under the shared vision for a San Diego County region that is Building Better Health, Living Safely and Thriving. More than 300 Recognized Partners have committed to working with the County of San Diego, community leaders and local organizations to support all 3.3 million residents across the region to live well – by building better service delivery systems, supporting positive choices, pursuing policy and environmental change and improving their own internal cultures.

Complex problems like chronic disease, community safety and self-sufficiency demand dynamic and generative solutions in policies, programs, events, and initiatives. During this seventh year of Live Well San Diego, traditional and non-traditional partners in every sector have stepped up to use their strengths to enhance and expand this region-wide approach to population health. The colorful data visualizations at the top of each Area of Influence section in this report show how Recognized Partner programs and initiatives are creating measurable change in the diverse communities they serve.

This printed report and the extended online report highlight success stories submitted by Recognized Partners demonstrating their impact on the lives of San Diegans from July 2016 through June 2017. The activities included herein show how the County of San Diego and hundreds of community partners and residents are working together to create a future where all San Diegans are Building Better Health, Living Safely, and Thriving.

As you will read in the following pages and by clicking through the digital report, Recognized Partners are the driving force behind the reach and impact of the Live Well San Diego vision. Through the strength of collective efforts, we are learning and growing together to live well!
COLLECTIVE IMPACT OF PARTNERS

The Live Well San Diego vision is supported by more than 300 Recognized Partners. This is the power of collective impact – working together to accomplish far more than government or any single entity could ever do alone. Live Well San Diego involves partners in all sectors - from cities and governments, to businesses and media, to schools and education, to community and faith-based organizations.

Recognized Partners have deep and broad reach in the communities they serve. They are going above and beyond in their commitment to a region that is healthy, safe and thriving. They are thinking about the future by seeking long-term solutions to local challenges. They are measuring their progress through numerical data and personal success stories.

PARTNER DATA & GROWTH

The growth of Recognized Partners from July 2016 to June 2017 was more than a 50% increase over the previous year. This past fiscal year, 102 additional organizations and businesses were recognized, making a cumulative total of 304 Recognized Partners through June 30, 2017. This total included 20 cities & government partners, 56 business & media partners, 41 schools & education partners, and 187 community & faith-based organization partners.

Recognized Partners collectively advance the Live Well San Diego vision by each contributing in unique ways to help move the dial in one or all three components of the vision. Based on city and unincorporated County participation alone, the reach of these collective efforts touches the lives of 2.8 million residents.

Recognized Partners by Sector

Business & Media partners are improving local economies, expanding the reach of messages, and have a positive influence on the health of employees, customers and communities.

Community & Faith-Based Organizations are connecting individuals and families throughout San Diego County region to programs and services.

Cities & Governments are enacting policies and building infrastructure for more than 2.4 million residents and policy makers.

Schools & Education are encouraging nearly 424,000 students and their families to adopt healthy, safe and thriving behaviors.
Regional events and programs create opportunities for Recognized Partners and community members to connect, share best practices and develop strategies that continue to propel Live Well San Diego forward in innovative ways.

The Live Well San Diego 5K, held in July 2016, brought together more than 2,500 race participants and many of their family members for a run/walk and an interactive, family-friendly Discovery Expo in support of a healthy, safe and thriving San Diego County. In partnership with the San Diego Blood Bank, this annual event was an opportunity for participants to be physically active, enjoy quality time with their neighbors and community members and connect with dozens of participating partners sharing information and resources. Benefitting the life-saving work of the San Diego Blood Bank, dozens of people donated blood onsite during the event.

The first-ever Live Well San Diego Advance, held in November 2016, gathered over 700 Recognized Partners and stakeholders to collaborate and celebrate six years of healthy, safe and thriving communities in San Diego. The Advance engaged representatives from each sector—from business to education and community organizations—to network, learn about new tools and best practices, and participate in engaging breakout sessions. Program sessions included: Healthy, Safe, and Thriving Kids; Engaging Business and Leveraging Human Capital; Growing Resilience in Our Communities to Heal Trauma; and Data and Technology for Action & Results.

Let’s Connect Expos, held in East, Central and South San Diego throughout the year, connected families with useful resources and enrichment opportunities to help them meet their needs, particularly for families who recently arrived in the United States. The events took place in El Cajon, Chula Vista, National City, San Ysidro and Imperial Beach in collaboration with community partners, and they were divided into three zones: Health, Safe and Thriving. The Health Zone included health screenings and healthy food demos; the Safety Zone included tools for building an emergency preparedness kit; and the Thriving Zone included resources for job readiness, resume writing, applying for financial aid and volunteer opportunities.

The Building Better Futures Gang Prevention & Intervention Summit included more than 180 city and County policymakers, law enforcement, probation, school-based leaders, community-based organizations and community members to share resources and information about gang suppression, intervention and prevention efforts in North San Diego County. Hosted by the North County Gang Commission in February 2017, a portion of the summit was dedicated to honoring community members and law enforcement officials working tirelessly on gang reduction in the region.

The North County Thriving Forum, held in April 2017, brought together more than 200 community partners and stakeholders to discuss how they can collaborate so North County communities are able to grow, connect and enjoy the highest quality of life.

Lastly, in June 2017, the Vital Aging Conference brought together more than 2,400 participants across four event sites in San Diego, Escondido, Spring Valley and National City. Attendees enjoyed a keynote presentation by legendary performer Ben Vereen, as well as interactive workshops covering topics such as brain health, caregiver health, nutrition and physical activity. Most importantly, many older adults made a commitment to do something positive for their health, safety and wellbeing based on what they had learned that day. This event was bolstered by Grandparents Raising Grandchildren programs and resources including child care; employment and educational opportunities; financial and housing support; legal services; and transportation links that are available countywide.

Health starts in our homes, schools, workplaces, neighborhoods and communities. Recognized Partners from all sectors work in innovative and collaborative ways to improve the physical and mental health of San Diego residents across their lifespans. By increasing access to affordable fresh food, expanding opportunities for physical activity, raising awareness about wellness and prevention, and upgrading systems so patients receive the best care possible, partners are raising the bar for better health and are influencing a positive trend towards higher life expectancy countywide.

To these ends, Ramona H.E.A.R.T. Murals Project produced a mobile map, available by website and smartphone, to encourage residents to walk and tour local murals. San Diego Health Connect linked patient data from San Diego’s three largest health systems. The San Diego Blood Bank hosted the first annual Padres Summer Blood Drive where they collected nearly 300 pints of blood to support their lifesaving work. Lastly, The San Diego Foundation teamed up with the Chula Vista Community Collaborative, Sweetwater Union High School District and other local partners to host the Growing Resilience in our Community event as part of their efforts to raise community awareness and help service providers and schools to integrate trauma informed care into their work. Recognized Partners provide programs that offer youth and young adults the opportunity to acquire hands-on, practical experience and gain knowledge. Partners are developing new degree programs, promoting STEM-based learning, distributing college scholarships, advancing literacy and supporting young students in need. The result is a trend towards higher high school graduation rates across the county region. Programs like these have the power to influence more than a resident’s education; they have the power to influence economic, social and psychological factors that over time can influence the health and wellbeing of a population.

Martin Luther King, Jr. Community Choir used funds from concerts to give educational grants to college-bound high school students planning to major in the Visual and Performing Arts. The San Ysidro School District collected backpacks and school supplies for the annual Families First Resource Fair, where they gave 600 children back to school kits. Additionally, the San Diego County Office of Education hosted their annual Summit on Student Engagement and Attendance, which included sessions for school districts to build relationships with behavioral health providers. Being financially able to afford basic costs of living for safe housing, healthy food, and other necessities is not always easy. Achieving a comfortable standard of living is impacted by personal barriers and unexpected challenges, and Recognized Partners are providing needed support throughout the region in the areas of work readiness, organizational improvement, and financial wellness. In turn, these efforts are showing a trend in increasing the number of people who spend less than one-third of their income on housing.

Junior Achievement provided financial literacy, work-readiness and entrepreneurship programs to over 80,300 youth across the county region. Partnerships with Industry raised over $10,000 in critical funds for their programs and services to create opportunities for more adults with disabilities to enter the workforce. San Diego Financial Literacy Center hosted a series of “Smart with Your Money” Financial Opportunity Clinics to provide financial guidance for individuals and community-oriented organizations. In addition, the San Diego Regional Chamber’s Foundation continued to offer four leadership development programs that focus on education, relationship-building and mentorship to give voice to San Diego’s rising business leaders. For more stories of how partners are supporting Standard of Living, read the extended online report.

Unemployment Rate

In 2016, 4.7% of people in eligible labor force were unemployed.

Income

1 in 2 households spends less than 1/3 income on housing.

Recognized Partners are working together to support safe neighborhoods and sustainable environments that provide clean and secure communities where people of all ages can live, work and play. Advancements in transportation offer an opportunity for the region to explore driverless vehicles; municipal parks provide space where children and families can gather and recharge; and community workshops and events improve awareness of a variety of topics such as identity theft or fire prevention for residents. In these ways, partner organizations and residents are working together to support healthy, safe and thriving communities, resulting in trends showing a lower crime rate countywide and fewer days with poor air quality since 2009.

SANDAG, in collaboration with the City of Chula Vista, is forming a Community of Practice, as part of a nationwide pilot, to test driverless vehicles and to develop best practices. I Love A Clean San Diego hosted a Coastal Cleanup Day where 7,500 volunteers gathered at more than 100 sites and removed over 150,000 pounds of debris from beaches, canyons, creeks and parks. Lastly, SAY San Diego and Project AWARE hosted the San Diego Unity Games, a softball tournament between community groups and Law Enforcement to help strengthen positive relationships and encourage shared understanding and communication. Communities thrive when residents are invested in the wellbeing of the people and places they interact with and within every day. Recognized Partners are leaders in creating community connections and empowering citizens. Residents find hope through support programs; families work together to create safe and thriving neighborhoods through training and education; seniors receive nourishment through meal delivery services; and volunteers gain greater purpose by giving back to their neighbors. Collectively, Recognized Partners are influencing a positive trend towards a higher percent of the San Diego County population who volunteer.

The North County Lifeline Project LIFE program provided trauma informed, evidence-based and culturally respectful prevention and intervention services to victims of human trafficking. Grossmont-Cuyamaca Community College District offered a Foster, Adoptive and Kinship Care Education (FAKCE) Super Saturday learning event for caregivers, kinship caregivers and children raised by relatives/grandparents. Community Health Improvement Partners connected numerous good food movement partners at their Good Food Showcase, resulting in $80,550 in local and sustainable foods purchased following the event. Additionally, the United Women of East Africa Support Team elevated community wellbeing for East African men and boys in San Diego by forging community partnerships. For more stories of how partners are supporting the Social Area of Influence, read the extended online report.
Heading into its eighth year, the Live Well San Diego vision is becoming a reality for more individuals, communities and organizations throughout the region. Recognized Partners in every sector continue to join the movement, bringing their expertise and expanding the reach of collective efforts that are creating measurable change.

Live Well Communities, a new program launched in 2016 by the County and in collaboration with community partners, is expanding the reach of the Live Well San Diego vision by addressing population health and health equity in historically underserved areas of the county — the communities of Southeastern San Diego, as well as nearby locations in Lemon Grove, Spring Valley and National City. The goal of the program is to address long-standing inequities, disparities and disproportionality by focusing on key interventions that engage residents, strengthen services and lead to measurable results.

According to the 2017 Homeless Point-in-Time Count, there are 9,116 homeless people in San Diego County. Beginning in January 2018, the Whole Person Wellness initiative will provide intensive care management for 1,049 people experiencing homelessness. Bringing Families Home is a program where families experiencing homelessness in the Central and South regions will be assigned a Housing Navigator. In addition, the Board of Supervisors recently established a $25m Trust Fund to spur housing development for people who are very-low to low-income.

In June 2017, the County and City of San Diego were jointly awarded a $6 million (over three years) California Board of State and Community Corrections Proposition 47 Grant to provide substance abuse and mental health services to people cited for or charged with misdemeanor drug and property crimes across the region. Under the grant, the County, the City and community partners are working together to provide in-person connections, case management, substance abuse treatment and help finding housing and jobs.

Strong Families, Thriving Communities is a partnership between the Clinton Health Matters Initiative, The San Diego Foundation and the County to improve the health and wellbeing of children and families who receive assistance from local agencies. Bringing together local leaders and organizations, the initiative is elevating the topic of disparities and inequities within the space of child welfare and juvenile justice, and facilitating a broader conversation on the current state of these systems.

The County of San Diego and partners launched the Choose Well website in August 2017, which allows caregivers and families to easily compare assisted living facilities via a simple rating system that considers cost, amenities, regulatory histories, licensing, nursing care and more. The site was developed with support from Consumer Advocates for RCFE Reform, a nonprofit group that helps seniors with residential care. Of 600 assisted-living facilities in San Diego County, nearly 120 have agreed to participate in voluntary evaluations thus far. The site launch is a key component of a larger focus on “Living Well Across the Ages,” the theme of the 2017 Live Well Advance.

Finally, the County’s Live Well San Diego Food System Initiative works toward a robust and resilient local food system that builds healthy communities, supports the economy and enhances the environment. The County is currently working with partners in the region to increase food donations and reduce food waste. In the coming year, the County will also continue to engage food system stakeholders to identify performance measures for the different facets of the food system (from distribution to disposal).

The programs and events in this printed report and online are only a small sample of the numerous ways that Recognized Partners, community organizations and individuals worked together in year seven of Live Well San Diego to advance the shared vision. Together, with the leadership of the San Diego County Board of Supervisors and supported by County staff, Recognized Partners are helping San Diegans to live well across the ages.
