RE: Live Well San Diego Board Resolution

Dear Peter,

This letter is to confirm that on December 2, 2014, the Board of Directors of the Council of Community Clinics passed a resolution to allow the organization to become a Live Well San Diego partner.

Founded in 1977, the Council of Community Clinics is a private, nonprofit association composed of 16 community clinic and health center organizations operating more than 100 practice sites throughout San Diego, Imperial and Riverside counties. The Council of Community Clinics' member health centers serve over 700,000 patients annually with over two million patient encounters. The mission of the Council of Community Clinics is to represent and support community clinics and health centers in their efforts to provide access to quality health care and related services for the diverse communities they serve with an emphasis on low-income and uninsured populations. The Council of Community Clinics offers a number of services to member clinics including health policy, advocacy, strategic communications and program and fund development as well as technical assistance, training and administration for collaborative programs. The board is comprised of the CEOs of all 16 member community health centers.

The Council of Community Clinics demonstrates the principles of Live Well San Diego through projects and programs that build a better service delivery system and support health centers in becoming more prosperous. Additionally, the Council of Community Clinics is committed to creating a healthy workplace so that employees and their families may thrive.

On behalf of our member organizations, patients, families, and employees, I look forward to partnering with the County of San Diego in this important initiative.

Sincerely,

Henry N. Tuttle
